THE SSPB'S 2ND ANNUAL MIDNIGHT MADNESS POLAROID CONTEST

WHAT IS IT? A road rally picture taking scavenger hunt, with a time limit and $1000 for the top four finishing teams. Teams of three to five participants will be attempting to snap crazy Polaroid pictures in and around SSU and Salisbury. Some examples of the pictures could be: a police officer standing on his head, a bearded man in a ladies dress, or a picture of a team member in a McDonalds uniform! A list of 50 or more possible pictures will be handed out at 8:00 pm on Friday October 7th as teams race away in cars all over Salisbury, returning no later than midnight.

HOW DOES A TEAM WIN? Each picture on the list will be assigned a point value, and each team may hand in no more than 17 pictures at midnight to the judges. The team with the highest point total wins.

WHAT ARE THE PRIZE AMOUNTS? The first place team will receive $400, the second place team $300, the third place team $200, and the fourth place team $100. The prize amounts are per team, not per person.

WHAT IS NEEDED TO PLAY? Three to five team members, a Polaroid camera, film, and a vehicle. (Teams that register early will receive free film, and extra cameras will be available)

HOW DOES A TEAM REGISTER? Sign up sheets and rule sheets will be available at the information desk in the university center and the Program Board office. Sign up begins on Monday October 3. The first five teams to register will receive two free rolls of film, and the following 10 teams will receive one free roll of film (Film type needed must be indicated on the sign up sheet. If not, it will be assumed the film type is Spectra 600.)

Administration Receives Title and Salary Changes

by Garrett McGlothlin
Flyer staff writer

In a memorandum issued June 16, SSU President Thomas Bellavance announced what he called some "minor changes in the [university's] organizational chart."

Effective July 1, 1994, Joseph Gilbert, vice president of administration assumed the title of executive vice president. Richard Pusey, formerly director of business and finance, became the president of that department, and Dr. Nelson Butler traded his title of vice president of academic affairs for provost. This year also marks the first year in four that faculty have received salary increases.

According to top members of the administration, not much has changed because of the new titles. "My responsibilities haven't changed really," said Butler, the new executive vice president. "My job is still to deal with the academic programs of the University, although I have taken on some more responsibility due to President Bellavance being ill." According to Butler, provost is the term used in most universities in the country and the state of Maryland for his position.

The new provost still has the plaque on his office door with his old title. Butler insisted "We don't get into trappings too much. The students and the education come first."

Specifically Butler meets weekly with the deans of each individual school within the university about curriculum issues, oversees the academic coordination between SSU and UMES, has 300 faculty under his jurisdiction and chairs the Academic Long Range Planning Committee.

The long range academic plan for the university has thirteen initiatives. These include maintaining the school's accreditation with the Middlestates Association, updating the faculty with computer technology, to ensure the continuing education of the teaching faculty and to increase the racial diversity of SSU's student body.

Butler said that he believes the initiatives stated within the plan are being met. This year the Middlestates Association will be surveying SSU as it does every ten years, in order to see if the school is meeting the standards set forth in the school mission statement.

Also, faculty will receive computer lessons this year and continue their education with the "global seminar," which focuses on a specific topic. Butler also said that student population at SSU is becoming more diverse. "We're doing well," he said, "We've been able to raise the minority rate by one percent."

Joe Gilbert, the new executive vice president of SSU, said his responsibilities have not changed much either. He holds jurisdiction over Carol Williamson, the Dean of Students; the Vice President of Business and Finance, Richard Pusey and the Director of Administrative Services, Richard Yobst.

Gilbert is also responsible for overseeing new construction and major renovations, such as the underpass being built under route thirteen. He said that while his responsibilities have not been changed, "they have grown in complexity, size and involvement. The quantity of my work has changed."

According to Butler,

"The title changes were made predominately to bring us in line with the other schools in the [University of Maryland] System. "The only two schools in the System that have not made the title change are Coppin State and UMES, and a lot of that has to do with their smaller size."

In addition to the administrative title changes, salaries of the entire faculty have been adjusted to include a cost of living allowance (COLA). Bellavance said, "the primary reason we did it was to bring their salaries into line with others in the University of Maryland System."

According to Gilbert, all of the faculty and staff had salary increases this year. "However," said Gilbert, "our [the administrators'] percentage of increase may have been higher."

Joe Oravec Announces New Plans for Student Activities at SSU

by Jim Hudson
Flyer staff writer

Joe Oravec, Salisbury State's new director of Student Activities and Organizations, has begun plans to restructure his department which will ultimately affect the entire SSU student population.

Oravec, 29, comes to SSU directly from Central Michigan University where he was assistant director of Student Life. At a reception on Sept. 18, Carol Williamson, dean of students, said, "Joe [Oravec] was the top choice out of 173 applicants."

Oravec's Office of Student Activities and Organizations oversees the Student Government Association, Program Board, Union of African-American Students, Appropriations Board, Evergreen Yearbook, WSUR, The Flyer, fraternities, sororities and all student clubs.

Oravec's vision, unveiled to student organizations at the Sept. 18 reception, is to be implemented over the next five years. The plan is broken down into three major areas.

The first area is composed of special events which will include Program Board events and major campus happenings. In addition to the traditional Homecoming, Student Leadership Awards Ceremony, Gullapalooza, etc., Oravec plans to bring new events to SSU.

One of these new events will be "Li'l Sibs Weekend". During this time, students will bring their siblings to SSU in order to show them true university life as well as possibly recruit future students.

The second area of the plan is Leadership Development. Oravec wants to hold workshops for both emerging and seasoned leaders.

The first of these workshops would be aimed primarily at freshmen and sophomores and would be designed to tap up-and-coming leadership potential. The second set of workshops would teach those with some previous leadership experience how to best utilize their skills.

Oravec also plans to hold a series of timely workshops. Topics for these workshops will include teaching respect for diversity, instructing student organization treasurers and easing officer transition in clubs. In addition, Oravec will schedule a Greek 101 workshop, designed for leaders of fraternities and sororities.

The third part of Oravec's restructuring will concern the area of student organization services. According to Oravec, these changes will probably result in the largest benefits to students.

The Office of Student Activities and Organizations has already revised and printed a new Policies and Procedures handbook. The office also held three workshops last week to inform organizations of the changes.

Calling himself "a believer in cutting red tape," Oravec hopes these changes will streamline the administration of student organizations. One of Oravec's current projects is revising the way in which an organization registers with his office.

Registering an organization is paramount because it opens up a great number of perks including possible funding by the Appropriations Board.

Oravec is planning to add to these perks by creating a Registered Student Organization publication center. Once the center is completed, organizations may go and consult with a graphic artist free of charge in order to design posters, flyers, announcements, etc.

The organization can then have the center produce their creation directly. Oravec hopes this will give a professional look to student publications and attract a greater level of student participation in organizations.

The restructuring also calls for an organization information resource rack where a club can pick up a pamphlet dealing with matters such as parliamentary procedures, elections, constitutions, etc. These pamphlets would also be produced by the student publication center.

Oravec wants to top off the plan with a monthly newsletter put out by his office. The newsletter would include contributions from any club that wanted to contribute. Oravec hopes this would foster a greater awareness and cooperation between various organizations.

Oravec's vision is summed up by his optimistic name for the plan: a "Leadership Spa and Fun Times Resort." He says his goal is to educate students while allowing them to rejuvenate and have fun.

If you have any questions about how these changes will affect you or your organization, please make an appointment with Joe Oravec at x36125.

SSU Exceeds Recycling Requirements

Kate Spinner

Flyer staff writer

In the past several years SSU has greatly increased its recycling efforts.

All Maryland State Universities are involved in some sort of recycling program. The state mandates that public universities recycle at least 20 percent of their garbage. Some other universities have not met these standards, but SSU has far exceeded the required minimum.

During the first half of 1994, we recycled 41 percent of our garbage, a slight increase from 32 percent in 1993. Recyclable garbage at SSU includes aluminum, tin and bi-metal; plastic narrow-necked containers; green, brown and clear glass; newspaper, high grade office paper, phone books and cardboard, yard waste and food waste.

Some Maryland State Universities have had some difficulty initiating recycling programs. Rick Shaw, head of SSU recycling says, "It is very difficult for Universities to find a middle-man to haul the products." It is also difficult to find markets for the products if there is not a massive supply of recyclable material.

Fortunately, SSU has a contract with Shore Disposal, a company who hauls the products and provides bins and compactors for temporary disposal on campus. They haul the recyclable material and maintain the containers. It is also their job to find markets for the recyclable material.

We pay them "... a great deal of money," said Les Lutz, director of Horticulture. The contract we have with Shore Disposal ensures that these recyclable materials enter into a closed loop recycling process. Glass bottles are recycled into other glass bottles, and paper must be recycled into paper.

The initial start-up cost, stated in the SSU recycling program contract with Shore Disposal, amounted to $9,449.52. The annual fees paid to Shore Disposal cover the rental of containers and compactors, and a hauling charge.

The annual cost for cardboard, glass, aluminum, paper, tin and plastic to be stored on campus and hauled amounted to approximately $13,000 in 1993. If there is a return on any of the products sold to manufacturers, the University receives 75 percent of the profit, and Shore Disposal receives the other 25 percent.

The University hires students to empty the bins, located outside of certain buildings, and to carry the contents to the huge 25-30 yard containers that are located behind the physical plant.

Shore Disposal sends food waste from the SSU dining hall to a compost center, where it is converted into fertilizer. Paper and cardboard boxes, retrieved by Shore Disposal, are bailed separately and sent to H.D. Metal in Salisbury to be recycled. H.D. Metal also receives aluminum, tin and bi-metals from Shore Disposal. Glass and plastics are sent to the county landfill recycling center.

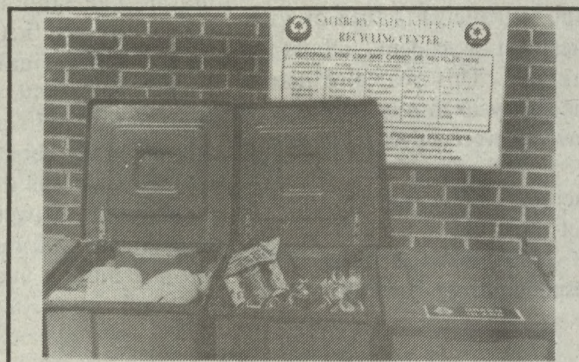

"The material sent to the county landfill is sent there to be recycled" emphasized Paul Shaw, a representative of Shore Disposal. The landfill then takes on the responsibility of finding a market for these products. In the long run "...everything gets recycled," says Shaw. "recycling is important, because it keeps garbage out of the landfill so that there will be a place to live for our children and our children's children."

The plastics they receive at the landfill are sorted by number codes, 1 and 2. Then they are bailed and sent to different companies. Glass is crushed and sorted by color into one ton boxes. The boxes are shipped to a company that will melt the glass and recycle it back into glass.

SSU recycles a few materials here on campus. We recycle yard waste such as weeds and leaves. The compost pile is located behind the physical plant. Oil is also recycled at the physical plant.

Recycling facilities are available outside every residence hall.

Music Department Does Not Violate Integrity

I am responding to Mr. Bill Bendelow's letter published in the September 27, 1994 issue of The Flyer. Mr. Bendelow raises several questions regarding University policy and integrity on the campus of Salisbury State University that do in actuality concern many of the faculty on this campus as well. The student Mr. Bendelow mentions has a right (as outlined in the Student Handbook) to confront the faculty member regarding any alleged grievances or discrepancies in grading practices.

Let it be immediately understood that the Department of Music does not contain negative files or documentation on any students, major or non-major, participating in music courses on this campus nor does the department condone the procedure or practice. In accordance to University policy, all grade information and evaluate instruments utilized by this department are open to the perusal of an individual upon requesting a conference with a given instructor. The allegations made by Mr. Bendelow that the department as a whole preferential judgments upon students is simply not true.

I will assume that, when Mr. Bendelow makes reference to policies "that affect the integrity of this institution," he is referring to the honesty and integrity of the student as well. That integrity should reflect the fact that Mr. Bendelow was in an area that he should not have had ready access to prior to his music lesson unless authorized by the instructor. Secondly, that "document" Mr. Bendelow is referring to in his letter might very well have been a grade book that was inadvertently left in the room by an instructor prior to a given class.

The question of integrity also arises when a student feels that he or she has a right to "skim" through a document not belonging to that student, and also possibly containing confidential University information. This action taken by Mr. Bendelow violates UMS policies regarding the right to privacy and the confidentiality of information act.

It is apparent that, after one year's time, Mr. Bendelow finds that he cannot confront the faculty member yet he does find an outlet to deface the University, the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and the Department of Music by allegations of negative file keeping. Further, it has been alleged by Mr. Bendelow that the Department had generated an evaluative statement to be given to an instructor regarding students' attitudes. This is false information and is a direct accusation against the Department of Music with no opportunity for verification or to respond, from either the Chair nor the instructor in question. Mr. Bendelow's integrity is, therefore, questioned when allegations such as these are raised which are unsubstantiated and procedural guidelines protecting the student, as established by the University, are ignored.

The Department of Music has always maintained an open policy regarding non-major's participation in all courses and performance ensembles offered through this department. This policy is also reflected in an open approach adapted by this department's faculty in working with students as mature adults and responsible individuals. I would gladly welcome Mr. Bendelow to approach me to discuss these allegations, instead he has chosen to revert to sensationalistic journalism to express his "concerns." It would be interesting to hear his response when asked why he felt it was his alright to look at the information regarding another student!

In closing, I find it woefully disheartening that any individual must create negative allegations an report the same in the manner that has been presented in The Flyer. This becomes painfully clear when an individual has not bothered to follow University procedure regarding grievances - guidelines established to protect students! Therefore, I must agree with Mr. Bendelow only in that the integrity of this institution has been violated only by himself.

Department of Music

Putting the Student back Into Student Government - A Question of Accountability

The purpose of the Student Government Association here at Salisbury State is to serve the student interests, but what has happened is that the SGA has lost its touch with the student body. However, at the most recent SGA meeting a new SGA constitution was proposed which may serve to increase the accountability of the group to its constituents - the students.

The old constitution allowed too many appointments at the hands of the SGA president. The executive board currently consists of only one official elected by the students, the president. Other positions are elected from within the student senate. This situation is problematic because it creates vacancies in the senate which are filled by presidential appointments. These people are supposed to represent the students - yet are not elected by the students.

How many of you have any idea of what the SGA does at our school? If you feel uninformed, join the club. This is due to several factors, including - up until recently - a lack of vision on the part of an overburdened SGA, general student apathy, misconceptions on the part of the students as to the purpose and ability of the SGA and a lack of coverage in The Flyer.

The new proposed constitution will increase the direct accountability of members of the executive council of the Student Government to the student body, by increasing the number of executive board members who are directly elected by the students. It will also allow students to become directly involved with the SGA through new positions called "independent representatives". This will allow individuals who do not wish to seek an elected position to become directly involved in decisions made for the student body.

Also, it will bring the responsibility for allocation of student activity funds within the auspices of the Student Government - thereby closer to the student body. For a copy of this new proposed constitution or general questions about the SGA call the SGA office at 548-4757, or stop by the office on the second floor of the University Center, room 240.

SSU Dealing With Residence Hall Smoking

Dorothy Juchniewicz
Flyer staff writer

Students filled out survey forms last November about an issue affecting most of the student body, non-smoking residence halls, and at the end of this fall semester another survey may be passed out as part of an evaluation of Severn and Manokin Hall, the two buildings on campus designated as non-smoking residence halls.

The housing contract was rewritten to comply with the new policy. The students applying for a housing assignment initialize the declaration that they agree not to smoke if given a non-smoking room. The Housing Department for Resident Life is looking into establishing more non-smoking halls if the students voice a need for them.

The fall semester is the first to offer students non-smoking housing areas and there are no definite results concerning this new policy. Out of the 1,731 students who lived on campus last fall 798 or 46 percent responded to the survey.

The answers on the survey indicated 174 students would agree to live in a non-smoking hall. The Severn Residence Hall, an upperclassman hall, has 226 occupants. The women's freshman hall, Manokin has 88 residents.

When rooms were assigned for the fall semester a few smokers were assigned to Severn due to the high occupancy rate of on campus residents. Two students who smoke are roommates in Severn and they've tried to smoke a couple of times but the ventilation system allows the smoke to travel through out the building.

They don't smoke in the building anymore. "It's not bad because of the weather but once it starts raining and snowing ... its going to be harder in the winter time," commented a student who asked not to be identified.

Benches and potters filled with sand for ashes and cigarette butts are situated outside Severn.

Severn was chosen to be the non-smoking upperclassmen hall because it is the newest hall and a few design problems have been discovered. Apparently the ventilation system circulates cigarette smoke throughout the building.

Roommate complaints and accusations concerning smoking are encouraged to be remedied between the roommates. A resident advisor or the area director has to smell the smoke in order to take action.

The area director has the authority to establish consequences if a problem continues and cannot be settled by the roommates. There has not been any judiciary hearing involving smoking in either hall. Such a hearing would be the first of its kind.

Mr. Brophy sums up the basis of having non-smoking areas, "It makes perfect sense to me as a non-smoker. It's (smoking) an infringement on space."

Poet Orlowsky to Join Writers-on-the-Shore

Ali Moyer
Feature Editor

Poet Dzvinia Orlowsky reads from her works on Wednesday, Oct. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall. Her reading initiates the Writers-on-the-Shore series sponsored by the English Department.

Orlowsky was invited this summer to teach at the Mt. Holyoke Writer's Conference in Massachusetts. Minatob Press published her chapbook entitled Burying Dolls in 1992 and her first full-length collection of poems entitled A Handful of Bees was recently published by Carnegie Mellon University Press. Orlowsky is a contributing editor to Agni Review and a founding editor of Four Way Books. Her poems have appeared in a number of magazines including The Pennsylvania Review, The Journal, Ploughshares, Agni Review and The Sycamore Review. Orlowsky has been a finalist in a number of poetry contests including the New Letters Literary Awards, The Grolier Prize and The Academy of American Poets.

Admission is free and the public is invited to attend.

Help Available for Relationship Violence on Campus

Christine Boyle
Flyer staff writer

Down the hall, a couple is overheard shouting and screaming. Someone gets hurt. What do you do?

Director of Public Safety and Campus Police James L. Phillips informs that assault and battery reports are made more frequently than most would like to believe.

Mostly cases are made between students that are or were involved in a romantic relationship. Suspects of abuse do not fit any one particular type of personality. It could be anyone. It could happen to you.

Director of Student Health Services Jennifer Berkman reflects that there is "A lot of relationship violence on campus...usually alcohol related and on Thursday, Friday, Saturday nights."

Take control of the situation

Phillips encourages students encountering a violent dispute to call public safety immediately. Use the blue lighted emergency phones if necessary.

Action will be taken without delay. The victim's safety will be insured first. Statements from both the victim and the suspect will be taken, evidence will be gathered and any reports from witnesses will be heavily weighed in the criminal investigation.

Usually within 24 hours the suspect will be served a statement requiring his or her appearance for an administrative hearing.

The victim may or may not choose to press charges with the Maryland District Court, in addition to filing administrative charges within the university. Some students refrain from filing charges of any type.

The guilty party may be dismissed from the university, or may be placed on probation with or without community service or a fine. While on probation, the guilty party is still eligible to participate in intercollegiate sports and other college activities.

In response to the Crime Beat report of assault and battery of Sept. 19, Antoinette Cannizzaro, sophomore social work major, retorts, "After one incident is proven, [the guilty party] shouldn't be allowed on campus...if they are given another chance, it may be one too many."

Finding understanding and peace

Why do victims go back to his or her abusive partner?

Berkman relates that going back may be because the victim has low self esteem, or that the victim may be from a family of origin in which abusive behavior was displayed and accepted. In a relationship, the victim may truly love the abuser and would like to believe changes could be made.

Unfortunately, the abusive partner just cannot stop. Intervention from a knowledgeable, supportive, well trained source is needed to help those who seek guidance and change. Changing behavior patterns is not easy.

Student Health Services offers healing for both wounds of the flesh and of the mind for both the victim and the abuser. A nurse is on call 24 hours on the weekends.

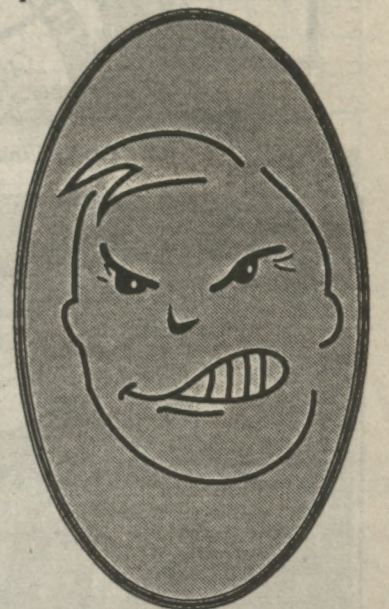

The Center for Personal and Professional development has counseling services for students at no cost.

The Center for Conflict Resolution on Camden and College Avenues is funded half and half by the university and the Wicomico County Board of Education. Michael McCormick offers programs for anger management and behavioral shaping at the Conflict Center.

A national hotline for those victims of relationship abuse and the abusers is

1-800-777-1960. Phillips supports "Everyone has the right from physical and mental harm."

If you are in an abusive relationship, assertively seek guidance and protection. Know your rights. You can have peace.

Chambliss to Discuss Legalization of Drugs

Marybeth Vanston
Flyer staff writer

Legalization of drugs, a recently proposed issue, will be the topic of discussion this Wednesday, October 5, 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Author William J. Chambliss will be presenting "Clinton 'Just Say No' To Surgeon General: The War and Its Consequences." Chambliss agrees with the U.S. General that the present approach against the drug problem in this country "has been a complete and utter failure."

Chambliss commented, "...the Surgeon General's proposal was not to legalize drugs...She proposed only that we look at the facts to see if the experience of other countries might provide a better approach than the U.S. 'War on Drugs'."

"She courageously suggested that the government look at the experience of countries that had decriminalized drugs. She said it was her understanding that in other countries the crime rate and the incidence of drug abuse had actually declined with legalization," stated Chambliss.

Chambliss also recognizes some problems the U.S. system currently has: "The ineffectiveness and the absurdity of putting so many people in prison for drug offenses has led police chiefs,

Midnight Madness Returns

On Friday, Oct. 7, The SSPB is sponsoring its Second Annual Midnight Madness Polaroid Contest. Teams of three to five participants will be attempting to snap crazy Polaroid pictures in and around SSU and Salisbury. Some examples of the pictures could be: a police officer standing on his head, a bearded man in a ladies dress, or a picture of a team member in a McDonald's uniform! A list of 50 or more possible pictures will be handed out at 8p.m. on Friday, Oct. 7, as teams race away in cars all over Salisbury, returning no later than midnight.

Each picture on the list will be assigned a point value, and at midnight each team may hand in no more than 17 pictures to the judges. The team with the highest point total wins.

The first place team will receive $400, the second place team $300, the third place team $200 and the fourth place team $100. The prize amounts are per team, not per person.

To make it easy on yourself be sure to have a car, Polaroid camera, and film ready. Teams that register early will receive free film, and extra cameras will be available.

Sign up sheets and rule sheets will be available at the information desk in the university center and the Program Board office. Sign up begins on Monday, October 3. The first five teams to register will receive two free rolls of film, and the following 10 teams will receive one free roll of film.

Washington Guitar Quintet to Perform Tonight

John Duffy

Flyer staff writer

Tonight at 8 pm in the Holloway Hall Auditorium, Charlie Byrd and The Washington Guitar Quintet will perform to benefit the University's new Galleries program. Byrd and the quintet have played prestigious venues and festivals all over the world since their debut at the Kennedy Center, in Washington DC, in 1987. Byrd himself has been a prominent figure in classical guitar for decades, and his credentials are certainly impressive.

He was born in Virginia in 1925 and was taught the guitar by his father. As a soldier during WWII, Byrd met the godfather of modern concert guitar, Django Reinhardt. This inspired Byrd to begin studying jazz music in New York, and by the late 1940's he was a formidable player in East Coast jazz circles.

His shift from pure jazz to classical was made under the watchful eye of Thomas Simmons and Sophocles Papas in Washington DC, followed by playing with the world renowned Andre Segovia in Italy. Studying under such great figures in the music world gave Byrd a diverse array of perspectives on guitar playing, composition and performance.

So it is not a surprise that when seeing Byrd perform or listening to one of his recordings, it is very difficult to place his music easily in one genre. This is well demonstrated on the latest Washington Guitar Quintet release, Aquarelle, on the Concord Concerto label, recorded at Omega Studios in Rockville, MD. Byrd is joined by Carlos Barbosa-Lima, Jeffrey Meyerriecks, Myrna Sislen and Larry Snitzler on a release that features fresh arrangements of a diverse number of pieces.

The disc begins with Vivaldi's "Concerto Grosso" (first movement) and then moves into a Latin piece by Antonio Carlos Jobim and Vinicius De Moraes. In the following cuts, songs by band great Bix Beiderbecke and the Gershwins are performed. Clarinetist Ken Peplowski is featured on three tracks including a Mozart quintet originally intended for clarinet and string quartet, and the somber Modinha. The genius of this project is in the rich tonal possibilities achieved when several guitars are joined in unison, particularly with the use of guitars in different registers. Byrd and company display elegance and perfection in sound, assuring their place as one of the world's great ensembles.

SSU kicks St. Marys around

Mike Beardslee
Sports Editor

Saturday, October 1—the Salisbury State women's soccer team defeated St. Mary's College, 3-2, to boost their overall record to 6-2. The contest wasn't nearly as close as the score would indicate, as Salisbury dominated in just about every category.

SSU took 47 shots while St. Mary's took just 4, and the Gulls held an 8-1 edge in corner kicks. In fact, the only area that SSU didn't hold an advantage in was saves. St. Mary's stopped 29 shots while Salisbury saved two.

Sophomore Cindy Parulis led off the scoring for the Gulls with a penalty kick with 38:20 remaining in the first half. St. Mary's answered with a goal of their own with 19:16 to go when Brandy VanMeter nailed one to tie it 1-1.

The action was mostly back and forth in the first, but in the second period the Gulls dominated play, and the ball rarely crossed the halfline. Vicki Prince assisted Ava Tasker to put the Gulls up 2-1 with 40:52 left in the second, and it looked like that would be more than enough to finish off the St. Mary's Seahawks.

But with 8:51 to go, Stephanie Karpinski scored on an indirect kick to make it 2-2.

"I thought we dominated play," said head coach Jim Berkman. "Sometimes you relax, and boom, they make you pay. They really caught us sleeping."

After the goal, SSU attacked with renewed ferocity. With just 5:50 remaining to play, junior Nicole Urban blasted one past the goalkeeper to send SSU up 3-2.

"Shooting was our biggest problem," said Berkman. "We had the opportunities, but we couldn't put it in the cage. Sometimes we're too anxious, and we need to be more patient."

"We played aggressive, but we need to control the ball better," said junior Ava Tasker. "We need to work on trapping and controlling the midfield better. We're getting there, though."

St. Mary's faced Trenton State on Monday, but the results were too late to be included in this edition. Their next game is against Johns Hopkins on October 5, and the Gulls return to their homefield on October 11 to face Virginia Wesleyan. Come out and show your support as the Gulls continue what has so far been a very successful season.

running backs. "We work together and off of each other to help us get better."

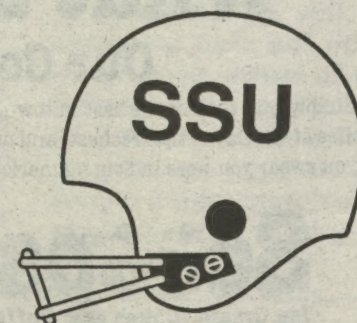

Grant considers himself a big play receiver with the ability and speed to go deep. "Freddy is a threat anytime he touches the ball," head coach Rotellini said.

Grant is confident and a little cocky too. "I want the game to be fun for the fans. I'd like to do a dance after every touchdown, but the coach won't allow that."

Grant considers himself the class clown of the team, but at the same time he takes every play seriously. "I have to keep my edge. If I lose that then I'm just another guy."

One of Grant's goals is to become an All-American. He also said that he would like to play professional football at some level, although he doesn't think he'll be playing in the NFL like his cousin, Deion Sanders. In the meantime, Grant continues to be a threat everytime he steps on the field for the Salisbury State Football team. Catch him in action this weekend as the Gulls take on Chowan in Sea Gull Stadium on Saturday, October 8, at 1:00.

Don't take him for Grant-ed

Chris Cuneo
Flyer staff writer

This year's Salisbury State Football team features some very versatile and talented players. Among them is junior wide receiver Freddy Grant, who has started three years for the Gulls and leads the squad with 16 catches for 200 yards. Grant also returns kickoffs and punts and is third on the scoring list with 8 points.

Grant played football at Snow Hill High School and originally decided to go to Millersville on a scholarship as a defensive back.

However, he decided to return to Salisbury to play for the Gulls. In his career he has caught 41 passes in two and a half seasons. Last year Grant broke the school record for most receiving yards in a game with 159 against Guilford.

Even with the loss of some key players, Grant thinks that this team has better attitudes and more overall talent than previous teams. In fact, Grant said that with a strong finish, they have a shot at making the ECAC playoffs.

"I don't expect to lose another game for the remainder of the season," said Grant.

Grant attributes a lot of his success to his fellow teammates, especially the other receivers and

Hankins works to come back from injury for X-Country

Jeffery Brameyer
Flyer staff writer

Jeff Hankins, Salisbury's top male cross country runner, may be down but he insists that he is not out.

Hankins, a senior transfer student from Essex Community College, was Salisbury's highest placed runner in the first two invitationals of the season.

Hankins finished an impressive 26th out of more than 300 runners at the highly competitive Lebanon Valley Invitational. Hankins also finished sixth at the Howard University Express Invitational.

Hankins, however, believes he has room for improvement. "Before my injury I was running a bit slow because I was undertrained at the time," he said.

Hankins now has a larger obstacle than undertraining. An injured thigh forced him to miss the team's third invitational at Christopher Newport.

Hankins is determined to make a strong comeback.

"Hopefully I'll be running this weekend," Hankins said. "As soon as I get over this injury, I plan on picking it up."

Hankins wants to be able to defend his Capital Athletic Conference title and eventually to make it to nationals at the end of the year.

Head coach Jerry Thomas said, "Jeff has the ability to reach nationals as long as he works hard when he gets back."

Hankins is no stranger to success. In high school he was county champion twice and in his senior year he placed second in states.

Hankins attributes his success to his strong work ethic, and coach Thomas agrees.

"Jeff is a hard worker and hopefully everything will fall in place for him this year."

Hankins injury is quickly healing and he has started running again, a little at a time, gradually building up his strength.

When he returns, Hankins said he wants to work on his endurance, a part of his running that he believes has suffered as of late. "Normally I rely on my endurance, but lately I have relied on speed. I want to change that."

With hard work and a strong desire to win, Jeff Hankins has the ability to attain his goals and help lead the men's cross country team to nationals.

The Moore the Merrier

Jeffery Brameyer
Flyer staff writer

Courtney Moore, one of Salisbury State's star volleyball players, has become an impact player for the Gulls this year.

The sophomore from Greensboro, Maryland has become a leader by example for the team.

"Courtney is a real spark for the team. When she gets excited on the court, it pumps everyone up," women's volleyball coach Deanna Parks remarked.

So far this season, Moore has played in 38 games and her numbers are impressive. Moore leads the team in hitting percentage and is tied for the most digs with senior Jen Bowman (also from Greensboro) with 115. Moore also ranks third on the team in service aces and block assists.

Moore comes from a strong high school program, and so the move to the college level has given her little trouble, as her recent performance has shown.

Moore was most recently honored by being named to the all-tournament team at the Sea Gull Classic volleyball tournament for the second year in a row.

Moore says one reason for her smooth transition is the presence of her old high school teammate, Jen Bowman. "Playing with Jen Bowman in high school and now in college has been a real help for me."

"Courtney is a very aggressive hitter and she sees the block very well. She is just solid all around," said Parks.

Not very self-centered. Moore likes to believe that one of her strong points is helping the team play as a whole.

"I try to make people play together as a team."

Moore also works on her individual game in the offseason by playing club volleyball at Anne Arundel Community College.

"My concern is to play smart and not just kill the ball. I like to put the ball where nobody is."

Moore feels that the team is a very talented one and has the potential to do great things. "We can play great at times but right now we are too inconsistent," Moore remarked.

Moore hopes to improve on the Gulls' performance in the Hunter College Invitational on October 8. The volleyball team's next home match is on October 26 versus Goucher.

National Fire Prevention Week

The week of October 10-14, 1994 is National Fire Prevention Week. During this week, which is also the anniversary of the Great Chicago Fire, the office of Public Safety would like everyone to be conscious of fire safety.

Fire exit drills will be conducted in all campus buildings. The purpose of these drills is to familiarize everyone with what to do in the event of an actual fire. An emphasis will be placed on the orderly evacuation under proper control rather than on speed. You will become accustomed to the sound of the fire alarm and to the nearest exit.

Paper and timely response to fire emergencies requires preplanning. For this reason, it is important that everyone participate in the drill by leaving the building when the alarm sounds. Prompt and authoritative fire emergency procedures (outlined below) are the best course of action to avoid panic and possible loss of life.

When the alarm sounds, you should:

1. Close all windows in the room that you are in.
2. Turn off all electrical equipment.
3. Close the door to your room as you leave.
4. Walk to the nearest exit. DO NOT RUN AND DO NOT USE THE ELEVATORS.
5. If the nearest exit is blocked due to fire or obstruction, proceed to an alternative exit.
6. Exit the building and move to a safe distance from the building.
7. DO NOT re-enter the building until an officer signals that it is safe.

Conferences Services, Facilities Reservations and Technical Services

The offices of Conference Services, Facilities Reservations and Technical Services have relocated to the Guerrieri University Center in the student activity area, rooms 242A & 242B, 242C, and 242J. All three offices will be open Monday through Friday 8a.m. to 5p.m. to accept your requests.

Conference services will continue to provide services to off campus users and to on campus users within the guidelines of established policies.

Individuals/organizations not qualifying for the use of University facilities/services as campus affiliated, are subject to applicable rental fees/charges.

In providing you the best possible service, the Facilities Reservations office ask that you complete a "Facilities Request Form" available through that office. Request by faculty and staff will continue to be taken by telephone at #8-3344 or by Email address DMTEST. Because of the numerous telephone requests received each day, we may be unable to process your request while you are on the phone. Your request will be recorded and processed as quickly as possible. The earlier the request is received, the better your chances are of receiving space adequate to your needs. This also allows ample time for support areas to react to your needs.

To request Technical Services a completed copy of a "Technical Services Work Sheet," available through that office, and a work order must be received by the Technical Services Department at least two weeks prior to the event. If you have any questions about the capabilities of the Technical Services Department, or if you need help filling out the worksheet, please contact Tony Broadbent at #8-4597.

ZTA

Zeta Tau Alpha

ZTA wants to thank everyone for coming out to see us during RUSH. A special thanks goes out to our rush chair Megan Vicino for all her hard work and dedication. Thanks also is extended to Sigma Alpha Epsilon for the social last Friday. Anyone interested in getting together call Jean at 546-6383 (like maybe the Pi Lam's, but only if we can find a place with just one room so you guys are forced to mingle-ha!) Actually, Einstein's is providing an opportunity for all of us to get together! On Friday Oct. 14th they're having a 70's night for all Greeks 18 and over (non-Greeks are welcome but you must be 21). It's just $3.00 cover, complete with dance contests and costume prizes and all proceeds are going to M.S. Need more info? Call Jen at the same # above. ZTA & TKE's might be roadtrippin' to IUP; we'll let you in on our fun - next time!

ΣΑΕ

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Well, we're back and comin' on strong. First off, we would like to congratulate all of our newly initiated brothers & neophytes: Dave "Mud" Gill, Scott "Pepper" Carey, Mark "Dorfman" Ferrara, Tim "Schlub" Berger, Steve "Nappy" Quinn, Dan "Shadow" Cowen, Brian "Ragu" Rossi, John "Pyle" Robertson, Mike "Grandma" King and Curtis "Scrappy" Orndorff. We would like to thank Alpha Sigma Tau for the far out 70's party and ZTA for the country western party. We plan on having an awesome semester, so if any organization is interested in throwing a gig give Flip a call at 860-5905. Also, good luck to all of our new pledges; you will have a memorable semester. For all those that missed out on our rush events, don't worry, you still have an opportunity to be a part of the only international fraternity next semester.

Ommph, by the way, if you are hungry, nothing compares to the all you can haul deal at Hooper's (Hooper's rules!), and Wendy's is now open 24/7. But if that doesn't appeal to your taste buds, check out SAE. . . we got the tuna!

Michelle- Thank you. . .no, thank YOU. . .Meghan- they match perfectly. . .I guess. Tori, where are you? I'm beginning to forget what you look like. . .Badge, I don't need no stinkin' badge. . .Later, ETCQ.

yes, contact Jim at 543-8341. Until next time, remember: whenever possible, DONKEY KONG!

ΦΜ

Phi Mu

The sisters of Phi Mu are proud to introduce their fall '94 Phi class. They are: Susan Barnes, Krista Barnette, Kelly Basile, Elaine Benson, Dominique Bucci, Debbie Dreistadt, Wendy Hildebrand, Christy Jacquette, Tracy Ledgister, Azure Mitchell, Abby Phillips, Melinda Ruskin and Melissa Valinotti. Congratulations, girls, we hope you are as excited as we are!!! Also, a big thanks to Sig Tau for the graffiti social!!

Now for the inside stuff: To the other 2 Sharses: The e-mail obsession has got to stop. It's begun to consume my life! Maureen- why does your carrot cake have wings? Christina and

TKE

Tau Kappa Epsilon

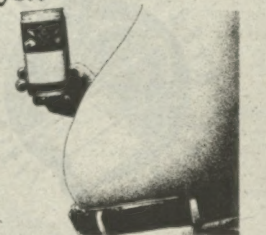

By the grace of God, we're back. The authors would like to thank the Greek Council for all of their helpful advice and support. This past weekend's car wash would not have been possible without Shhhhhhh's and Cramp's enthusiastic participation along with Alfalfa's touching yet motivational speech. The tattoo club is 3 members larger now: TKE for life. Someone tell us what happened at the barbecue this past weekend. Thumper was playing baseball while Radar took his clothes off. Bam Bam: Stop playing with the Hoover. Sebastian: Schwing! Want a social with TKE? We're always on our best behavior. If

ΣΤΓ

Sigma Tau Gamma

Hey! What's up Howleys?! Us here at Sig Tau would like to welcome all of you back. We would also like to thank Phi Mu for a great blacklight party!! Whoever I gave my hat to give Shawn a call. I really can't remember who I gave it to. Can you imagine that?! We would like to thank all of the guys who came out for rush; get ready for a phat semester.

To anyone who is interested in pledging Sig Tau, the most chillin' fraternity on campus, give Brad Marsh a call at (54) 82085 or just ask a brother for info about pledging. Oh Yea, How about them Cowboys!!
